History of islam pdf book

Along with Judaism and Christianity, Islam is one of the three great monotheistic religions that make up the majority of the sane in the world’s religions today. Islam means devotion, and it began in the seventh century with revelations of the Prophet Muhammad. These revelations were recorded in the Koran, which is the sacred text of the Islamic faith. On the basis of the principle of giving Allah, Islam has spread rapidly over the centuries. It is believed that angel Gabriel appeared before Muhammad with a message directly from Allah. In 622, Muhammad escaped persecution and flew north to the city of Medina. His flight, or hijra, marks the beginning of the Islamic calendar. Despite the actions of the few, Qu’ran teaches the importance of peace and inclusion. It is believed that mankind is created from a single soul, and all men are equal in the eyes of God. The five pillars are faith, prayer, charity, self-purcation and pilgrimage to Mehka. By some measures, one-fifth of the world’s population is devout Muslims and is the second largest religion in the world. The main message of Islam is simple: worship and obey Allah and pray. With so many devout followers and the jets of his core message, it is easy to see why Islam is considered such an important religion in the world today. Part of Oxford’s short history of the modern world contains Bonney’s fresh and fusiod text of narrative and thematic sections involving political, economic, religious and social debate. The book’s geographic spread is excellent, even Russia and the Scandinavian countries, and when you add to the reading quality list, you have an excellent quantity.
